Anchorage Students Earn College Credit in High School

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Lumen Christi Catholic High School is the first in Anchorage to offer students an opportunity to earn college credit through the University of Alaska Fairbanks eCampus Advantage program.

“This partnership is a great opportunity for our students to get a jump start on their college careers,” said Lumen Christi Principal Brian Ross. “The credits will apply toward UAF undergraduate requirements and are also accepted nationally at other colleges and universities.”

The Anchorage students will have dual enrollment, meaning they will be able to take the online college courses in STEM, social sciences, math, and the humanities for both high school and college credit. The new five-year partnership launched this semester and offers Lumen Christi students greatly reduced pricing for the 100- and 200-level college courses.

“The academic standards at Lumen are rigorous and we're pleased to have a way for students to take their learning beyond traditional AP classes and to the next level,” said Ross.

Lumen Christi Catholic High School has a track record of classes with a 100% graduation rate with the majority of those students pursuing a college education.
